

214. Which of the following is an acceptable procedure when installing piping in a load-bearing wooden partition?

- (a) Do not drill or notch the studs
- (b) Drill a hole at the sides of the studs
- (c) Make a notch not more than one-half the thickness
- (d) Drill hole through the center of the studs

214. Which of the following is an acceptable procedure when installing piping in a load-bearing wooden partition?

- (a) Do not drill or notch the studs
- (b) Drill a hole at the sides of the studs
- (c) Make a notch not more than one-half the thickness
- (d) Drill hole through the center of the studs

